Full information is also provided on the company's quality accreditation, training and maintenance services, sales offices and support offices in the UK, USA and India.

The site will be regularly updated by Clinical Systems staff and by its web design team from J S Web Services with news, events, product updates, new downloads and background information relating to LIMS and ClinAxys® II.

The new website is the second in a series of investments that Clinical Systems has planned to improve its services and communications. Previously, the company has invested in the quality of its business and it has achieved ISO9001:2000 certification for its business management systems. Next it plans to invest in its product support services and the web site will act as a conduit for some new functions to increase responsiveness.
